COLLEGE AND CAREER FAIR FINDING TALENTED CRAFTSMEN

Recently, SWS had the opportunity to reach out to budding craftsmen through our local school system's College and Career Fair. Many of these students take classes for woodworking, welding, and industrial maintenance. Many also complete college courses while in high school. These students are the future of not just SWS, but of companies across the country.

During the College and Career Fair, two of our estimators talked with students about the amazing work we do here at SWS and the opportunities for local employment that many students may not realize are available to them. Students were also able to watch a short video of our different processes. Some of the photos from the video are pictured to the left. If you would like to see the video, we encourage you to visit our Facebook page.

As a custom manufacturer, SWS is always looking for hardworking, creative, and dedicated people to join our company. It was a pleasure to meet these bright young minds and see how focused they are on successful futures even at such a young age.
